

CANAL TEST-DRILLING LOCATIONS

The state Department of Water Resources in September plans to start underwater drilling in the Sacramento River and elsewhere in the Delta to take soil samples to find the best route for a controversial canal. The canal would divert a portion of the Sacramento River's flow and deliver it to export pumps near Tracy. Three routes are being studied; only one or two would be built.

